My five year old daughter told me : Mommy, when you die, I will take all my treasures and I will give them to you when you return as a little baby. That day, I felt a great surge of happiness