What makes me happy is the idea that people would learn to love each other, without any feeling of racism. The world is everybody's