What makes me happy is meeting passionate people. They always lend me an admiration like an imprint of their ardor, of their taste for life and love.