Whenever I start to really like a person, I look at them straight in the eyes and I tell them that I love them (which is always true): the glint that I see shine in their eyes, sometimes only for a fraction of a second, fills me with joy, and I am happy.

Louis 47 ans Lyon